NORTON FOLGATE

Work Ready

BY BRITISH LAND

Space to bloom

16 BLOSSOM STREET accelerates growth. All-electric and with a mix of open plan and warehouse-style areas, its 15,737 sq ft of office space confidently mixes modern touches with period features. It carries the charm of bygone eras lightly, seamlessly connecting the Edwardian public house façade to the clean lines and statuesque tree in the public courtyard outside its door.

Part of the new Norton Folgate Quarter, this is where you can do business flexibly, productively – brilliantly. And The City financial district and Old Street tech community are just minutes away.

Yesterday's charm, today's buzz

BLOSSOM STREET is steeped in history. In 1703, No.14 was home to The Norton Folgate Girls' Charity School. And No.16's Edwardian features are in the Arts and Crafts style, similar to Philip Webb's famous Worship Street workshops.

Both sit proudly among Norton Folgate's redeveloped Georgian and Victorian architecture. Initially the site of a Roman burial ground, the area was once known as St Mary Spital – after the 12th Century hospital that gave the wider Spitalfields district its name.

Becoming notable once again as a centre for Georgian Huguenot silk-weaving, and a prospering cluster of Victorian industry – it's most recent incarnation is a neighbourhood full of ambitious businesses and families.

With so many new retailers and restaurants around Norton Folgate, you won't have to walk far to shop or eat. From Spitalfields Market's eclectic vendors to culinary classics at Hawksmoor, inventive entrées from Ottolenghi or a proper pint in an east end pub.

It's not just businesses that spark into life here. Food, fashion and lifestyle trends trace their lineage to these streets. It's an amazing place. Not just to work – but to be.

A quarter with influence

ARCHITECTS DSDHA have collaborated with Stanton Williams, Allford Hall Monaghan Morris, and Morris + Company to create Norton Folgate. Spread across six buildings, it offers 330,000 sq ft of mixed use space.

Offices with historic character, impressive sustainability credentials and a vibrant lifestyle.

Ready-made connections

Old Street's tech and Square Mile's financial districts are on 16 Blossom Street's doorstep. Connections from Liverpool and Shoreditch High Street stations make it easy to travel across London, to Heathrow and Gatwick airports, and around the South East.

Pollinating old with new

WITH 20 RIBA awards to their name, DSDHA have revitalised 16 Blossom Street's period features with engaging new architecture. Office spaces are a world of contrasts. Heritage fireplaces add character to Grade A specifications. Original chimneypots frame views of the glass and concrete-clad skyline.

It's an approach that segues seamlessly into the entirely new areas. From the living-room ambience of the reception to the informal kitchen and breakout space – it's eclectic, atmospheric and comfortable. A workspace that feels like a home.

Each of the four floors are delivered as Work Ready spaces complete with workstations, meeting rooms and breakout spaces, with the option to add additional services.
